

Off The Financial Grid

by Cindy Slettevold

Finding the Freedom You Envisioned

The owner of a business carries a heavy burden. There is a lot to do and there is a lot to worry about. The 'buck stops with you', doesn't it? And that's as it should be – it's your name on the door. But what happens to your company if you can't show up one day? Have you thought about that? Can your company grow, or even operate, without you? And what about cash flow? With expenses rising every day, is your cash really working as efficiently as it could? Or does it seem as if the bank owns more of your company than you do? Is this the freedom and independence you dreamed about?

Many people think you have to be rich and not need money in order to be truly free. There is truth in that. However, it is possible to maintain a sense of freedom and independence while that fortune is being made. But we can't be free if we're worried.

There are systems and tools that can create security for your business and peace of mind for you.

- If something happened to you, your company could still operate and pay its bills
- Ensure your company could continue without you, your partner or a key employee
- Attract and retain the best employees by offering high quality, affordable benefits
- Turn equipment purchases and leases into actual investments that add to your bottom line
- Strengthen your cash position through internal financing instead of losing that money to the bank

Now, more than ever, business owners need a plan that controls expenses, increases cash on hand and offers protection, flexibility and peace of mind. Experience the freedom and independence every business owner dreams of.